Sharina believes the ability to become a role model comes from within — that's why she tries to inspire the children she teaches to believe in themselves.

What are you passionate about? I'm all about living in the moment. I hate answering questions like "Where do you see yourself in five years?" because I prefer to live for the present. I'm still young, and I can take on the world and anything that's thrown my way!

Where does your confidence come from? Probably my parents. My mom was loud and my dad was cheeky and flirtatious so I inherited a good mix of their personalities. I've always been comfortable in my own skin and stayed true to myself, even in the face of peer pressure.

What's your motto in life? Enjoy the moment because life is short. Being happy is the most important thing — if you're not, what's the point of living? That's what I always pursue the things I love.

Who was your role model in life? Britney Spears. Sure she's had a lot of controversy surrounding her but all of that shows that, like us, she isn't perfect. She has her own personal problems and it's admirable that she's been able to bounce back from all her setbacks. That's at least I aspire to have. However, role models don't always have to be a famous figure — they can be someone older in your life, or just someone you can relate to. That's what I hope to be with the children I teach.

National Day video hits the right note

ANOTHER National Day video has gone viral. But unlike the infamous Pan Fook Song which ran into copyright problems, this one went viral in a good way.

The music video is Another Home, a cheeky spoof on National Day videos.

Set to an upbeat electronic arrangement of Dick Lee's Home, the video features local actor Chua Erial singing and dancing to people, issues and events that have hit the home industry.

National Day was the occasion to do ones," said Mr Sing.

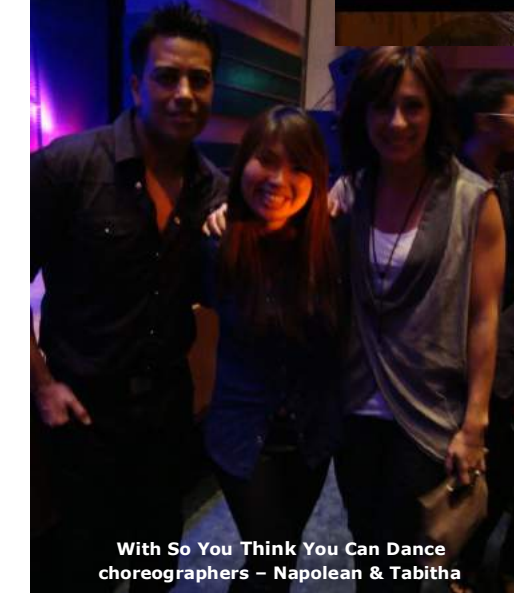

He said part of the reason for creating the video was also to make National Day videos "relevant" again.

To get ideas, Mr Sing spoke to film-makers like Goo Hui Beng, Tan Pin Pin, Anthony Chen and Gani Goon, and local personalities like Loretta Chua, Neil Hamburger and even Bis Lee.

He then took the beat of the lyrics and put them
